

Two friends enjoy the occasion. (0793770)

'I'm here with The Cave Girls, there's a few of us around. Everybody here knows somebody who has been affected by cancer. All the girls are doing it for Anne.'
Paulette Berryman, 34, who works at Aladdin's Cave, is pictured with one-year-old Alexa Downes. (0793659)

'We're doing this for Anne'

It was an emotional journey for The Pink Ladies. They dedicated this year's walk to the memory of the 2007 sunset walk organiser, Anne McMillan. Left to right are: Sally Rowe, Chris Bisson, Jo Allen, Nancy Golland, Gill Weeks, Doreen Le Poidevin and Amanda Brown. (0793651)

Fluffy pink deely boppers were the order of the day for many teams taking part in the walk such as The Pink Baby Dolls (0793715)

Cave Girls Sue Neill, left, and Jane Meerveld. (0793667)

A ribbon of pink decorates the west coast on Saturday. (0793708)

And they're off. Walkers at the Bordeaux route are given the signal to start by MC Gary Burgess. (0793653)

Teal Breaton, 10, Demi Stracey, and Jess Moore, both 11, get some help from the Pink Panther. (0793648)

A great experience for great causes

'My mother-in-law had breast cancer and my sister is going through it at the moment. Predominantly we did this to raise money for charity but also because it's for cancer. I did it two years ago and it was such a wonderful experience.'

Melanie Burns, 45, walking with daughter Megan, 12, and dog Jelly.

'We did the Moonwalk in London so we thought we would give our outfits another airing. We are doing this to raise awareness. I did it two years ago. It was such a great experience we decided to do the Itex Walk last year and the London Moonwalk. And here we are again.'

Jenny Froome, 57, who runs a riding stable, was walking wearing her decorated bra.

'There was about 22 of us doing it. Sue Birtwhistle organised it. She was friends with Anne McMillan and wanted us to walk in her memory. It was exciting, really good fun. There was really good support. Everybody was waving at us from their cars. I think it's for such a worthwhile cause. It's fantastic.'

Sharon Tardif, 42, receptionist at Nerine.

The Terrific Three, aka: Liz Le Patourel, left, Sheila Benwell and Jenjira Bourgaize, right. (0793720)

'These two lost their mum three years ago. I'm their official carer. It's a very strong unit and the kids wanted to do it. Jenny Adams, 57, retired, but guardian of Jay, 5, and Danielle Adams, 7.

'This is my first time. This is important because people who have breast cancer need money. It's for a good cause and in memory of my mummy as well.' Danielle. (0793659)

'When I saw it advertised I thought about doing it. I thought about doing it two years ago. There's four of us now [at Grandes Rocques] then three joining us from Bordeaux. We've all had somebody that's had cancer. The idea for Care Bears was because we are all carers.'

Kath Carre, 56, right, with friends from Maison L'Aumone, Carol Robert, left, Liz Harper, second from left, and Denise Bullock.

'Most of us are helping so are we going to do a walk next week. We will all be dressed in pink so people might think we are a week late. We are doing it in memory of our friend Anne.'

Pink Ladies Linda Falla, right, with Linda Coutu, both are dressed as flappers.